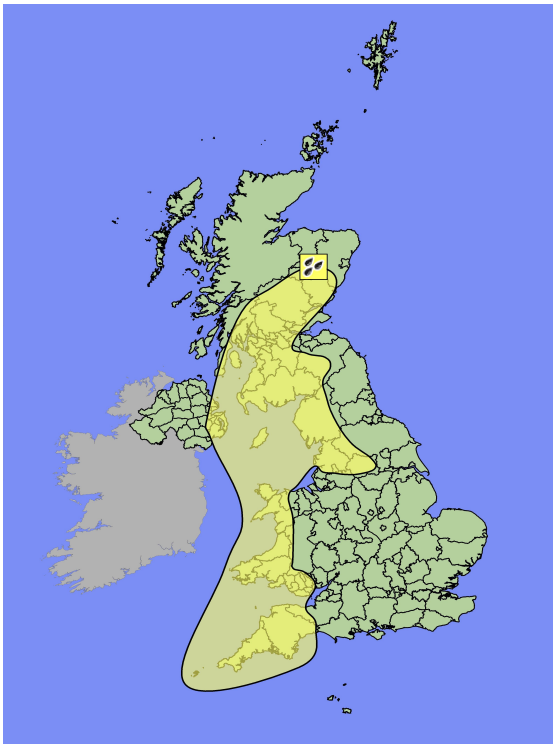
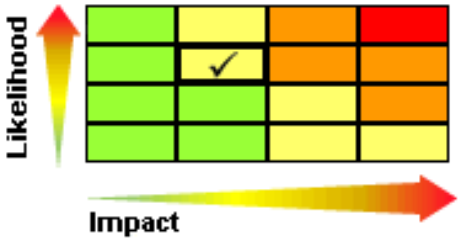
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An active frontal system is expected to bring a period of heavy rain to parts of Northern Ireland and Scotland as well as parts of western England and Wales during Monday. The heaviest rain is most likely to occur across upland areas, especially those of southwest Scotland and the Grampians. Around 15 to 25 mm of rain seems likely to fall widely, with some upland locations receiving in excess of 50 mm. The rain should start to ease from the west later in the day.

Accompanying the rain will be strong southerly winds and gusts to around 40 to 50 mph are likely along coasts and over high ground.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 03:00 on Mon, 27th Aug 2012 until 23:59 on Mon, 27th Aug 2012

Heavy rain, accompanied by strong winds, is expected to spread eastwards during Monday, to affect parts of Northern Ireland and Scotland as well as parts of western England and Wales. The public should be aware of the possibility of surface water flooding and minor disruption to travel.
